

Traditional/Transitional Architecture

(under 4,000 square feet)

JMA INTERIOR DESIGN

Cottage Chic

“This charming cottage in Jupiter provides a haven of relaxation,” says designer Jacquelyn Armour. “The homeowners are empty-nesters who wanted a home that was clean-lined, bright, and quaint. We delivered with oversized windows and skylights that create an abundance of light, and a portico at the entry, a perfect spot for evening drinks. Inside, the palette is neutral with natural elements, custom millwork, and light wood plank flooring throughout.”
jmainteriordesign.com

Millwork

JMA INTERIOR DESIGN

Craftsmanship Cachet

“This Palm Beach home is quite traditional, so our goal with the millwork was to go with a formal look to highlight understated details that are true to the architecture of the house,” says designer Jacquelyn Armour. “The beam work in the dining room is a great example of that approach. It’s simple drywall beams with a very pared down crown and accent trim detail. It gives the illusion of floating over the space because it’s painted in a soft white, and we were lucky to have volume in the space so that helps.”
jmainteriorsdesign.com

PHOTOS BY CARMEL BRANTLEY